

1. We should all agree to have our portion of the work on each assignment complete 24 hours before the assignment is due so that we can go over our final submission as a group and make sure it is up to par before we turn it in.
2. We should communicate regularly through an agreed-upon communication medium, most likely a group chat on Discord/Instagram or through texting with a 24 hour response time.
3. Everyone should be responsible for some share of the work on each assignment, and we should figure out who is responsible for what early on to avoid last-minute scrambling.
4. Debate the decisions and agree which is better with participation of the whole group in case there are different decisions or opinions.
5. Each group member should approve our assignments before we turn them in/
Go over each other's work.
6. Assume that if anybody hasn't done his assigned task, he won't be given credit in the final submission. That specific task will be split between the rest of the members.
